Congress Again Bars Arms Aid For Turks

By Mary Russell WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 (WP).

Congress and President Ford plunged into a new impasse over. Turkey today as both chambers ignored veto threats and voted to cut off U.S. weapons aid to Turkey immediately if any of the supplies are transshipped to Turkish forces in Cyprus. The action, a sharp rebuff to the President and to Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, prolonged the conflict over Turkish aid and again blocked the scheduled election recess of Congress.

immediate cutoff of weapons aid to Turkey would antegonize the Turks and undermine Mr. Kissinger's efforts to negotiate an end to the Turkish occupation of about 40 per cent of Cyprus. But sponsors of the cutoff say that Turkey has violated U.S. laws forbidding use of American-supplied weapons for aggressive action against other nations.

In an attempt at compromise, Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal D-N.Y. and other sponsors of the cutoff agreed to let the President postpone the cutoff until Dec. 10 to give Mr. Rissinger

Consolidation Is Subject to Approval

Pan Am, TWA Agree on Cutback

By Robert Lindsey

NEW YORK, Oct. 16 (NYT).-Pan American World Airways and Trans World Airlines today agreed on a plan to halt head-tohead competition on thousands of miles of air routes between this country and points in Europe and

Under the five-year agreement, the two major U.S. overseas airlines would, in effect, divide several major international travel markets between themselves, although competition from foreign airlines would continue. The two airlines announced today that the plan could not take effect before Feb. 1.

The agreement, which is subject to approval by the Civil Aeronautics Board and President Ford, is simed at reducing a vast surplus of airline seats on many routes and at narrowing the financially pressed airlines' losses by more than $50 million a year. If implemented, the agreement would mean the largest curtailment of service by U.S. flag airlines in a single move.

Travel Shimp

Terms of the five-year agreement were developed during several weeks of negotiations held under the auspices of the CAB. The board, along with the Ford administration, has encouraged the two airlines to consolidate services to ease a financial crisis caused by soaring fuel prices and a slump in air travel on many routes. However, opposition to the plan is expected from some antitrust specialists in the Justice Department. The route-swapping agreement was scheduled to be signed yesterday. But the signing was held up at the last minute by several factors, including the necessity for Pan Am to obtain approval for the agreement from its creditors.

Under the plan, Pan Am would suspend its service to France and most of its service to Portugal, Spain and Morocco, giving TWA a virtual monopoly in U.S. flag sirline service to these countries. Pan Am would continue to fly to Lisbon and Madrid from Mismi Pan Am also would suspend service between London and Chicago, Los Angeles and Philadelphia. And it would turn over most of its traditionally lucrative Los Angeles-Hawaii service to TWA.

although Pan Am could still serve Hawaii on its through flights across the Pacific. In return, TWA would suspend service to Frankfurt, giving Pan Am a U.S. airline monopoly to West Germany.

TWA would suspend its service to Bombay, Bangkok, Hong Kong, Okinawa, Taipel and Guam, leaving Pan Am the sole U.S. airline serving Bombay and ending TWA's round-the-world network would also suspend its through service between London

Aviation industry analysts said that TWA appeared to have ne-gotiated by far the better of the deal. It was not surprising, they said because Pan Am has been severely weakened by more than live years of heavy losses, totaling more than $200 million. Last month, the Ford administration refused appeals by Pan Am and TWA for federal subsidies to help offset higher fuel

Violence Erupts In Ulster Jails, Streets of Cities

BELFAST, Oct. 16.-Violence erupted in Catholic sectors of North ern Ireland's main cities today following an overnight prison riot that left most of the province's main detention center—the Maze—in Serious incidents flared today at three other prisons. British troops and Uister police were rushed to the top security Jali at Armagh, 30 miles southwest of Belfast, when women prisoners seized the male governor, two women guards and another official as hostages. Troops also were sent to Magilligan Prison, in County Londoderry, when prisoners set fire to buildings. A government spokesman said rioting at Magilligan was halted in three hours by troops in riot gear, after inmates' huts library rooms, a kitchen and a candy shop were set ablaze. There was no report of injuries.

In Belfast's Crumlin Road jall, number of staff members and inmates were injured in a brief clash in the political prisoners' wing. In Belfast and Londonderry, police joined British troops in the streets in an attempt to control roaming gangs who hijacked cars and trucks and used them to block main thoroughfares.

By midday, traffic had come to a halt in the center of Londonderry because of barricades thrown up by angry crowds that surged out of the Catholics' Bogside area, Shops closed early and bus service was suspended.

in Belfast, buses also stopped running in the Catholic communities on the north and west sides of the city. Many streets were blocked. A mob of 150 persens attacked an army bus and was turned back by soldiers firing rubber bullets.

Seven persons were injured in shooting and bombing attacks in Catholic areas of the city. The worst rioting was in the Barnmore bousing complex, a North Belfast enclave of Catholics surrounded by Protestants. Troops bullets in running battles with mobs throwing gasoline bombs

Detention Issue

There have been demonstrations for weeks at the Maze against conditions there and against internment without trial in Northern Ireland. Detention, as the internment is officially called is the one grievance inspired by the Irish Republican Army around which virtually the entire Catholic community unites.

Rumors swept Ulster that prisoners had been killed in pitched battles at the Maze, which houses 1.400 men, including nearly 600 suspected terrorists who are detained without trial. But a gov ernment statement insisted that only nine prisoners had been injured, none seriously, whereas a prison guard had a possible fracture of the skull.

The women rioters at Armagh included supporters of both the IRA and of militant Protestant groups.

Britain Told Joining EEC

Wasn't Costly Price Rises Laid To Other Factors

BRUSSELS, Oct. 16 (AP-DJ). -The European Communities Commission has called "simply incorrect" the view widely held in Britain that European Economic Community membership caused a large increase in Britain's cost of living.

All available evidence points to the conclusion that EEC mem-bership had only a marginal effect on the overall cost of living in the United Kingdom, the commission stated.

The statement was in a written reply to a question from Lord O'Hagan, a British member of the European Parliament. The reply was distributed today. Noting that the British cost Britain's joining the EEC. "Indeed, the unprecedented rapid rise in world commodity prices, the large upsurge in unit the depreciation of sterling largely explain, for the United Kingdom, these inflationary trends.

the commission stated. Tax Change-Over

The change-over to the valueadded tax system in Britain, a consequence of joining the EEC, was largely neutralized by abbiishing the purchase tax and selective employment tax, the commission argued. Adoption of the EEC's Common Agricultural Policy, widely expected to lead to higher prices on farm products in Britain, in fact served to counter rising prices, since it allowed Britain to obtain supplies of some important products at prices well nelow sharply increased world market prices, according to the

A further important element arising from British membership in the EEC was "sizable tariff reductions, amounting to 48 per cent for industrial goods." since Britain entered, the commission

Kissinger Urges Americans to End Bitterness

By Bernard Gwertzman

NEW YORK, Oct. 16 (NYT).-Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, noting that the Vietnam war and the Watergate crisis were over, said here today that it was time Americans "made peace" with themselves

In a speech at the Alfred E. Smith Memorial Dinner in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, Mr. Kissinger said, "The bitterness that has characterized the national debate no longer has reason or place.

"For more than a decade we have been torn by war and then by constitutional crisis. We have been enervated by our exertions, and perhaps even more by selfdoubt. But now the war is over and the crisis resolved. It is time we made peace with ourselves." He said that governments must always make difficult choices and judgments, and these were difficult even in the best of cir-

Gromyko Makes Pledge to Fahmy

MOSCOW, Oct. 16 (UPI).-The Soviet Union told Egypt today that it would work to broaden relations with Cairo and give full support to Arab demands for complete Israeli troop withdrawal from occupied territories.

Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko made the pledge at a luncheon in honor of visiting Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail

Fahmy, Tass said. Mr Gromyko sald Moscow also would give the Arabs "guarantees for the legitimate national rights of the Palestinian cause."

But beyond specifics, Mr. Kissinger has privately expressed the view that people should have a certain minimum trust in their elected officials. Without this trust, governments have difficulty in functioning, he has said, "Debate in a democratic soclety should find its ultimate limit in a general recognition that we are all engaged in a common enterprise," he said today. "Let us never forget that at home a society thrives not on its internal victories but on its reconciliations,"

Oil Crisis

In private, Mr. Kissinger has also been concerned about the economic crisis facing the Western world, due largely to the rapid rise in oil prices. He has talked about the possible collapse of Western societies and potential take-overs by Communists in several countries. He referred to this concern when he said that Western countries faced "basic ques-

Yugoslav Dissident Reported To See Soviet Role in Arrest

BELGRADE, Oct. 16 (UPI).- ing that Mr. Mihajlov had been Dissident author Mihajlo Mihajlov has accused Yugoslav officials of arresting him because of Soviet pressure to strike a balance against the recent trial of 32 pro-Russian neo-Stalinists, legal sources said today. Mr. Mibajlov, an outspoken critic of the Soviet Union, reportedly told an investigating judge that his arrest was the result of Soviet pressure on Yugoslav authorities to demonstrate that not only pro-Russian opposition groups had been singled out in a crackdown.

Mr. Mihajlov, 39, gained prominence in 1965 with an essay, "Moscow Summer," which criticized what he saw as the vestiges of Stalinism in the Soviet Union. For the essay and his criticism of President Tito's regime, he spent nearly four years in jail. He was released in 1970.

Mr. Mihajlov was arrested a few weeks after sentences, ranging fron one to 14 years in prison, were handed out on Sept, 20 to the Montenegrin neo-Stalinists. They were convicted of setting up a rival party which aimed to overthrow President Tito's regime.

Legal sources said that Mr. Mihajic was arrested last week because of his articles, printed in the West, which said that the danger to Yugoslavia after President Tito's death would come from the Soviet Union. He also criticized the Yugoslav Constitution, passed this year, as being mere theory which bore no relation to reality.

Asked by the investigating judge what he meant by the unreality of the constitution. Mr. Mihajlov replied: "The constitution guarantees freedom of the press. If we had that, I wouldn't be here now."

Mr. Mihajlov was also ques tioned about his view that the Soviet Union was the only country likely to attack Yugoslavia. He was told it was a completely false conclusion, the sources said.

Before leaving for a visit to the United States two weeks ago, the Pollsh party leader, Edward Gierek, said that active preparations for the big conference were in progress, and that it might take place in November or December. or later. The main Soviet interest in conferences of Communist parties is in presenting a show of unity (preferably monolithic) to the outside world, clearly implying that Moscow is still the center of world Communism.

Soviet Union that it had not For some West European Communist parties, notably the Italians, the presumption is that this poses special problems. More than ever before, the Italian Communists are close to real power in government and, to avoid stirring up unnecessary resentment at home, are understood to want to eschew an image as the agents of Moscow.

But much more serious problems have resulted from two other matters. One is the continuing Soviet desire to have the Chinese Communist party formally damned as heretic by most of the other Communist parties in the world. The other is the continuing fear in some quarters of the threat of Soviet intervention by force in the affairs of other Communist nations.

Suspicions of Soviet Intentions were neightened in Yugoslavia recently by the disclosure that a group of dissident "Stalinist" Yugoslavs, allegedly working for Moscow, had been plotting to undermine the Yugoslav party. In Romania, another maverick among European Communist states, rumors have been circulated by Romanian officials to the effect that the Russians were considering forcing a corridor through Romania from the Soviet Union to Bulgaria. The latter is politically so close to the Soviet Union that there have been Bulgarian proposals for making Bulgaria part of the Soviet Union.

Yugoslavia and Romania also oppose Soviet hopes for drum-ming China out of the socialist commonwealth. The presence of both Yugoslav and Romanian delegations at today's meeting strongly implies that the China question has been sidelined.

Insurance Claim NEW YORK, Oct. 16 (AP),-The U.S. Court of Appeals said yesterday that a group of U.S. and British insurance underwriters must pay Pan Am $24 million for a Boeing 747 jumbo jet destroyed by Arab guerrillas in the Mideast in 1970. The insurance litigation centered on legal interpretations of the language of the policies. The 24 insurers, led by Aetna Casualty and Surety Co., had tried to evade payment of the claim on the ground that their contracts with Pan Am excluded payment on claims of loss due to war. They contended war included hostile acts by guerrillas.

Judge Paul Hays, in a 74-page opinion, noted that the policies did exclude claims due to loss through war, but ruled that the Arab hijackers were part of a radical political group and did not represent any nation.

"It would not have occurred to me that my support of the Republican party would cancel my rights to be heard on any issue on its merits," Mr. Rockefeller said through George Taylor, a family press spokesman

Probe Planned

The House Judiciary Committee plans to investigate whether there was any connection between the campaign contribution and Mr. Nixon's action. The committee investigation is in connection with President Ford's nomination of Nelson Rockefeller, Laurance Rockefeller's brother, to be vicepresid~nt

There appeared to be no evidence at this point of a connec-tion between the Rockefeller contribution and Mr. Nixon's ruling. But committee sources said the timing of the events had raised questions in the minds of some members

Mr. Taylor said that Laurance Rockefeller, who has been iden-tified as the largest single stockholder in Eastern, owned 1.75 per cent of the airline's voting stock He said that he did not know of Eastern holdings by other mem-bers of the Rockefeller family. Hugh Morrow, Nelson Rockefeller's press secretary, said Mon-day that the former New York

governor owned no stock in Eastern Air Lines However, Chase Manhattan Bank the Rockefeller family bank, holds 6.1 per cent of East-ern Air Lines stock in trust, and is the prime source of a $300million loan to the airline

On Monday, a White House aide who handled the matter for Mr. Nixon and a member of the CAB both said that they were unaware of any special involvement of the Rockefellers in the delibe tions that led the President to approve the acquisition.

Flanigan's Role

Congressional sources yesterday learned that Peter Flanigan, President Ford's nominee for ambassador to Spain, was in charge of the White House's disposition of the case. Mr. Flanigan has been accused by Herbert Kalmbach of selling ambassadorships, a charge which Mr. Flanigan has vigorously denied but which nonetheless s delayed Senate confirmation of his appointment. Congressional sources said that Mr. Flanigan's involvement in the Caribair acquisition alone would require close scrutiny of 'be handling of the matter.

Laurance Rockefeller said that the telegram he sent to Mr. Nixon on Aug. 25, 1972, was the only time in which he directly intervened at the White House on be-. half of Eastern Air Lines' proposal to acquire Caribair He said through the family spokesman that "I wired the President about the Eastern-Caribair merger proposal some 22 months after an acquisition agreement had been signed between the two airlines. It was a prolonged case even then, and the merger had drawn widespread support through the Caribbean. "I expected no special consideration and I received none," he

No Hearings Likely on New Post for Haig

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 (WP).

Former White House chief of staff Alexander Haig jr. was officially returned to active duty with the Army yesterday. The four-star general apparently will assume his new duties as the top U.S. and NATO commander in Europe next month without any congressional hearings on the controversial appointment.

When the plan to recall Gen. Haig to active duty was revealed by the White House early in September, some congressmen and senators, including at least one on the Senate Armed Services Committee, called for hearings on the Haig appointment.

These lawmakers asserted that because of Gen. Haig's unique political role as a civilian in the Nixon White House, and questions about his involvement in several sensitive issues, congressional committees should have a chance to air these matters with him before he took on the highest military job in Europe.

Hearings Debated

The Senate Armed Services Committee, at the urging of Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who is not a committee member, met privately late last month to discuss whether to hold hearings on the Haig appointment. Sources say that no conclusion was reached then and no hearings are now scheduled. Committee chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., is known not to favor such hearings. With Gen. Haig scheduled to leave the United States late this month to take over as commander in Europe on Nov. 1, and with Congress expected to start its election recess this week, congressional observers say there is virtually no chance that hearings

Mr. White had asked for federal assistance in keeping order · in the city, but the White House turned down that request, saying federal troops would be used only as a last resort if local and state authorities were unable to maintain order.

The adjutant general of the Massachusetts National Guard, Maj. Gen. Vahan Vartanian said his troops would remain in the city as long as they were needed. He said the men were well-trained and well-equipped.

Ford Calls for Warlike Zeal in Fight Against Inflation, Waste

By Jules Witcover

حكذا من الاصل

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 16 (WP).--President Ford invoked the rhetoric and weapons of World War II's home-front mobilization last night to rally Americans to his anti-inflation, anti-waste fight. At the same time, he opened fire on Congress for balking at some of his recommendations. Reporting that "a great citimobilization has begun," the President called for the planting of home vegetable gardens and the sale of anti-inflation government bonds and promised WIN (for Whip Inflation Now") flags to businesses that hold down costs and prices. Mr. Ford, in a speech he considered important enough to request live network television coverage for the first time, told the Future Farmers of America that the American people al-ready have responded magnificently" to his economic message to Congress last week calling for

But he was not laudatory of Congress's early reaction. Noting criticism that "instead of asking Congress and the nation to bite the bullet, I offered only a marshmallow," the President in turn criticized Congress for declining to postpone for three months a 5.5 per cent pay rise for federal employees, a step "that would have saved 700 million taxpayer dollars.

Tough Turkey' "Congress wouldn't even chew that 'marshmallow,'" he said. They hadn't shown much appetite for the other marshmallow in my latest message. But if they don't like my menu, I may be back with some tough tur-

Mr. Ford's emphasis, however, was on personal citizen participation in the fight against inflation. He laid before his audience of young farmers and the TV au-dience a 12-point program for per-sonal action, including 10 of the points proposed by his 23-member Citizens' Action Committee to fight inflation "I sense that the American people are hungry for some tougher stuff to chew on tonight," he said speaking from Kansas City's Municipal Auditorium. He told the Future Farmers that "in a war against inflation, farmers are front-line soldiers. To halt higher food prices, we must pro-

Balance Your Budget'

The President reported 10 recommendations from the Citizens' Action Committee, whose chairman is Sylvia Porter, syndicated newspaper columnist specializing in financial matters.

They included: "Balance your family budget and expect your government officials to do the same. Learn how to use credit wisely. Postpone unnecessary borrowing . . . Save as much as you can." The President said he has asked the Treasury Department to explore the issuance of "a new series of WIN bonds" purchased through payroll deductions with more competitive interest rates. Other proposals: "Conserve energy"; establishment of local Citizens' Action Committees with labor and managemen, representatives, to watch how well wages and prices are held in check and to recommend who will receive WIN flags: "To help offset pay increases, insist on productivity improvements where you work . . . Make economizing fashionable, Shop wisely." Also: Help "eliminate outmoded regulations that keep cost of goods and services high and enforce regulations that advance efficiency, health and safety... Do it yourself. Plant WIN gardens for yourself or within your community. Pool other do-it-yourself skills ... Assist in recycling programs and the re-use of scrap metal materials."

Two Exhartations

To these Citizens' Action Committee recommendations, the President added two other exhortations: Cut down on waste and guard your health, to reduce days lost at work through sickness, and increase productivity and reduce the demand for health care.

The President said he has asked all governors to form "WIN committees" on the state and local levels in the next six weeks and report progress thereafter through a new national report-

On the other hand, Mr. Ford's statement that he planned to expedite his program through amendments to the Clean Air Act of 1970 is being taken seriously and has caused dismay in the Environmental Protection Agency and congressional committees, even though the President did not specify what amendments he would seek. The President set an overall goal of eliminating by 1980 the roughly 140 oil-fired power plants that provide about 20 per cent of "the nation's base-loaded electrical capacity"-that is, the capacity of plants operating around the clock.

The expert view is that this goal is unrealistic. As for conversion to nuclear power, the President's proposal comes at a time when 10 utilities, beset by financial difficulties, have postponed construction of 15 nuclear plants that had been scheduled to begin operating in 1980, and when critical questions are being raised about the safety of nuclear plants because of breakdowns and

As for converting to cost officials point out that about half the 140 oil-fired plants originally burned coal and could be reconverted, although some would have to be fitted with new boilers. The other half, designed to burn oil, would have to have boilers replaced, an expensive and time-

Supreme Court Declines Wiretapping Case

By Warren Weaver Ir. WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 (NYT). -The Supreme Court declined resterday to consider the ques-tion of whether the president can legally order wiretaps when he finds them necessary to intercept and counter foreign espio-

Three of the eight justices who participated in the decision voted to hear the case and resolve an 11-year-old controversy that hinges on the president's absolute right to intercept private conversations when intelligence is involved. It was one fewer than the number needed to put the case on the court's agenda. Two years ago, the court ruled manimously that the Justice Department could not conduct surveillance without obtaining a court order when domestic security was involved, but the justices refrained from extending this doctrine to foreign intelligence cases.

The case that the court refused, in a routine three-sentence memorandum, involved Igor Ivanov, who was convicted in

The Tally Voting to review the case were Justices William Donglas, William Brennan jr. and Potter Stewart. Justice Thurgood Marshall did not participate in the decision, presumably on the grounds that he served as solidtor general for two years while the Ivanov case was pending.

Opposed to accepting the case were Chief Justice Warren Burger and Justices Byron White, Harry Blackmun, Lewis Powell jr. and William Rehnquist. Although the court's refusal to consider the question did not establish any national legal precedent, it left standing a lower court decision upholding the government in the Ivanov case and several similar ones that have not reached the high court.

Ivanov's conviction first came to the Supreme Court on appeal in 1969, and the justices sent it back to determine whether there had been illegal wiretapping. The defendant, a chauffeur for the Soviet trading agency, Amtorg, when arrested, was allowed to return to the Soviet Union after his conviction upon assurance that he would be returned if his conviction was affirmed on ap-

U.S. Navy Chief to Increase Fleet's Firepower, Flexibility

By Michael Getler

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 (WP). A major increase in the offensive firepower and flexibility of the U.S. Navy's surface ships is the primary goal of the new chief of naval operations, Adm. James Holloway. To get that extra striking power, the admiral said, he plans to speed development of the Navy's new Harpoon missile and expand both the number of ships that will carry it and the number of firing batteries on each vessel. Harpoon is designed to hit enemy vessels as far as 60 miles away, beyond the range of Navy guna. Wide deployment of this missile, Adm. Holloway said, would also bring with it much of the flexibility that the fleet It would allow some versels now equipped primarily to pro-test siruraft carriers from enemy air attack, to operate more in-dependently of the carriers and contribute more to offensive rather then purely defensive operations.

With the cost of shipbuilding scaring, and the size of the U.S. fleet reduced from almost 900 vessels five years ago to just over 500 today, Adm. Holloway said the Navy must get more out of each ship. The service, he said, "simply can't afford to build new ships only to protect carriers' from air or sea attack.

The Navy has been criticized by many observers in recent years for putting too much emphasis on very expensive vessels, such as nuclear-powered frigates laden mostly with anti-sircraft missiles meant primarily to defend the carriers from air attack.

Adm. Hollowsy in effect said that he would move away from that concept. He said that the carrier-based F-14 fighter has "three times the capability" of the current P-4 fighter to protect the carrier task force from air attack. And, he pointed out, the ere of long-range missiles-already in the hands of the Soviet Navy and Air Force—has made obsolete the idea of carriers operating with tight screens of escort

Widely Dispersed

Task forces now are dispersed over broad expanses of water, so that a nuclear missile exploding near one ship would not destroy many others.

"We really want to drop the term 'escort,'" Adm. Holloway said. "Carriers don't need a ring of ships around them anymor? The threat is so much faster now. The attack range of submarinelaunched [anti-ship] missiles is 25 miles or so. In a conflict, the fleet disposition is dispersed over many miles of ocean, linked by radio communications, not visual."

Anesthetic Gases Held Danger To Operating-Room Workers

By Victor Cohn

-Men and women who work regularly in hospital operating rooms have abnormally high rates of disease and damaged children, apparently from breathing anesthetic gases, a medical committee has reported.

A survey sponsored by the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health showed these results Monday from a study of 29,000 such doctors, nurses, anes-thetists and technicians:

 Cancer rates among women that are far higher than normal. • More liver and kidney disease among both men and women. More spontaneous abortions and birth defects among children of women who work in operating TOOME.

birth defects among babies fathered by male anesthetists, apparently indicating sperm or gene damage

Amounts Leaked

Dr. Ellis Cohen, chairman of the 1972 survey, reported on the results to the American Society

The study was brought about by reports from several countries of ill effects on operating-room workers, apparently from anesthetics. Amounts of such gases that leak into the air range from 10 parts per million in the cases of ether, halothane and cyclopropane, up through 100 to 1,000 parts per million for the commonly used nitrous oxide.

"But these people," said Dr. Cohen, "breathe these gases eight hours a day, five days a week and often they stay in the body a long time, so their effects are cumulative."

Dr. Cohen's committee sent a questionnaire to nearly 50,000 anesthesiologists (who give or supervise anesthesia), nurse-anesthetists, operating room nurses and technicians. For comparision, questionnaires went to nearly 24,000 doctors and nurses who do not work in operating FOOMS.

The survey did not include surgeons, Dr. Cohen said, since they may operate only one, two or three days a week.

With answers from well over half, the survey established to its statisticians' satisfaction that:

• Affected women had spontaneous abortion rates from 1.3 times to twice that of the unexposed. For example, there were 17.1 spontaneous abortions per 100 pregnancies for anesthesiologists, compared with 8.9 per cent for pediatricians.

• The offspring of nurse-anes-thetists had birth defects nearly

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 (WP), twice as often as those of un-exposed women. Exposed women had from 1.3 to twice as many cases of cancer as unexposed women. This included all types of cancer, with highest rates for leukemia and lymphoma. There was no similar increase in cancer for men. Liver disease was from 1.3 to 2.2 times as great in exposed men and

Statistical System

What has been established, Dr. Cohen said, is a strong statistical link rather than positive proof of cause and effect. But the link is backed, he said, by two new British studies with similar results as well as laboratory tests showing that the same gases can harm rats and their offspring.

Anesthetics work by depressing the central nervous system. All are chemicals with powerful potential effects on body cells and the delicate genes, Tests by a Northwestern University anesthesiologist showed that normal persons who breathe traces of the same anesthetic gases for four hours suffer a halfsecond lag in ability to do various tasks. Evidently the gases also affect mental acuity and dexterity. Dr. Cohen said, and this is to be checked by another study.

Spain Would Bar Activity by Exiled Portuguese Right

MADRID, Oct. 16 (UPI).—The government said today that it would not tolerate any political activity by Portuguese rightists in exile in Spain.

The statement followed a report by Nuevo Diario, a newspaper, that a group calling itself the Portuguese Government of the Silent Majority in Exile has been formed in Madrid "to fight for the liberation of its country against international Commuism . . . and the traitors of the Salazar regime."

"In relation to this news . . the Spanish government, which has always scrupulously applied the principle of noninterference in the internal affairs of other countries, states that it will not allow in Spain any political activities directed against governments of countries with which it maintains relations."

The national news agency, Cifra, and several newspapers questioned the existence of the exile government. They said that they had received the same communique as Nuevo Diario, but refused to publish it breause it was not adequately signed.

Mr. Ford and the Pardon

before a House Judiciary subcommittee today to explain why he prematurely granted Richard Nixon an unconditional pardon, his questioners should not allow the commendable presidential gesture to overshadow the need for specific answers.

Regardless of Mr. Ford's motives and intent, the pardon before rather than after full disclosure of Mr. Nixon's abuse of presidential power has the effect of impeding the search for the truth about a dark and dangerous episode in American history.

The issue of the pardon cannot be laid to rest by a reiteration of Mr. Ford's earlier emphatic denial of any agreement on the matter between himself and Mr. Nixon. A persuasive review of the decisions that led up to the pardon would have to include—as the resolution of inquiry introduced by Rep. Bella Abzug. D-N.Y., properly emphasizesthe complete history of any prior discussions of a pardon not only between Mr. Ford and Mr. Nixon but also any of their aides or

The specific White House actions during the week that preceded the pardon remain shrouded in mystery. An attorney representing the President was dispatched to San Clemente, allegedly with orders to obtain from Mr. Nixon a confession of guilt, In the face of the former president's reported refusal to agree to such a statement, what persuaded Mr. Ford to grant the pardon unconditionally? And why, in any event, did the White House choose for so delicate a mission an attorney who was himself under investigation by the Justice Department?

Answers must be forthcoming on the role played by Gen. Haig and J. Fred Buzhardt during that week of behind-the-scenes negotiations Did Gen. Haig act as an intermediary between his former chief and his new one? If so, who provided the information thus transmitted? Mr. Buzhardt, who had been a principal lieutenant in Mr. Nixon's right to keep the White House tapes from

When President Ford appears voluntarily Congress and the courts, appears once again to have been intimately involved in the aborted agreement to bury those same tapes in vaults that could not be entered without Mr. Nixon's consent. Was it purely coincidental that the agreement concerning the tapes and the issuance of the pardon seemed so closely synchronized?

Only the most persuasive explanations can dispel existing suspicions of a link between the White House tapes and alleged efforts by H. R. Haldeman to obtain a presidential pardon during Mr. Nixon's last days in office. Such suspicions were fed further by the Ford administration's trial balloonshot down by public and congressional indignation—that Mr. Ford was also considering a Nixon-type pre-trial pardon for Mr. Haldeman and all the other Watergate defendants

Finally, the questions to be put to Mr. Ford should not skirt the issue of the presidential pardon itself. There is, for instance, the matter of possible conflict between the pardon and the charter granted the special Watergate prosecutor-an issue disposed of much too cavalierly by Leon Jaworski in his letter of resignation last week.

Also there is disagreement among legal authorities on the constitutionality of a blanket and unconditional pardon without prior determination of guilt. In considering so fundamental an issue, the framers' intent cannot be ignored. A Constitution aimed at freeing this nation for all times from the exercise of royal and arbitrary rule can hardly have been designed to bestow on future presidents a power so absolute that it could vitiate the judicial process and deny the American people's right to know the truth about the conduct of those in highest attempt to form his fifth cabinet and Italy's 37th postwar government is clear: If he fails to reconstruct a viable ministry from the ranks of Italy's democratic parties, the next government is virtually certain to include representatives of the most powerful Communist party in the Western world.

It is arguable—or at least conceivable—that Communist participation in the government for the first time in 30 years might not be fatal for Italy's democracy. The Italian Communists have demonstrated some independence of Moscow on occasion; they have, since the fall of Fascism, played the parliamentary game, usually according to the rules; and they have governed major Italian cities and even regions without destroying freedom or democratic institutions.

However, Mr. Fanfani is clearly right to reject any alliance between his Christian Democrats and the Communists even as a temporary arrangement simed at pulling Italy out of its worst economic crisis since > Communist participation would inevitably be realized at the expense of the smaller democratic parties: it would raise doubtswhatever the Communists promised—about the durability of Italy's commitment to the West through NATO and the European Community, and it would make it more difficult for Italy to secure the essential cooperation of the international financial organizations for its recovery effort.

> Mr. Fanfani has been a mercurial politician whose loyalty to principle has frequently been challenged. But he is right, in existing circumstances, to shun the Communist offer of a "historic compromise" and try to build his government from the forces that have, as he puts it, "a clear and permanent democratic vocation."

The Message for Wilson

As in February, the British electorate has made it clearly known that it rejects all forms of extremism. Will the Labor party take the message to heart? Will the smallness of Wilson's majority exert a moderating influence on government policy? Though by no means certain, it seems likely. To start with, the country will need massive injections of finance from other nations, and this will call for the establishment of confidence in London's economic policies. So while such nationalization projects as those for North Sea oil and real estate will probably go ahead, the less relevant aspects of party dogma are likely to be put on the shelf. Wilson's chief problem will be to restore confidence and financial liquidity to industry before unemployment gets out of hand. without giving the trade unions excuses for declaring the 'social contract" to have been infringed and embarking on a new round of exaggerated wage claims. -From the Neue Zuercher Zeitung (Zurich).

A main feature of the election was that the Conservatives and Laborites battled the election campaign with a plainspoken confrontation of class-consciousness, breaking out of the traditional British politics. Crises stemming from hopeless inflation and the increase of unemployment as well as a "threat to democratic politics" were overemphasized. In order to escape from such crises, voters voted for the Labor party, which is safer than the Conservatives, who might clash with the labor unions .. No one denies, however, that there is a big doubt whether the "small victory" can function as ex-

U.S. Military Aid to Turkey

The Turks on their side must be aware that their armed forces are heavily dependent on American ammunition which, if there were going to be further large-scale fighting in Cyprus, or in Thrace and the Aegean, it might be politically difficult for the United States to keep on supplying. They are perhaps not sufficiently aware that the present situation in Cyprus, if left to fester for too long, could well degenerate to a point where further large-scale fighting would be likely. It is as important for Turkey as for Greece that the Denktash-Clerides talks should lead to a political settlement involving the withdrawal from Cyprus of Turkish and Greek forces Mr. Caramanlis has seen this, and has wisely given Mr. Clerides a free hand. It is to be hoped that Ankara will allow Mr. Denktash the same flexibility. -From the Times (London).

LISBON.—The power struggle in Portugal is by no means over. But if there is one man who can be said to control Portugal and who has the means of hanging on to power, it would seem to be Brig. Otelo Saraiva Carvalho. The source of Brig. Carvalho's power are his three

The rightist rumor mills say Brig. Carvalho is a Communist, a charge he denies with a chuckle. He repeats the standard line of the Armed Forces Movement that its members are spolitical, that all they want to do is to hand over power to whomever wins the elections scheduled for next spring. But he does admit that the captains who make up the bulk of the AFM have a preference and he is the first leader of the movement to do so publicly. He says that what the movement really would like-to see is a Socialist government that would wipe out the huge inequities between the poor and the rich in

"The Portuguese people are not prepared to accept a Communist government," he says, and adds: The Communists are not in-terested yet in winning the elections. If they won, they'd have lots of problems and they know that. Problems with non-Communist West European govern-ments... with North America. They remamber Chile."

If the extreme left, in an ef-fort to avoid a Chile situation, should try to bypass the electoral process with a coup, Brig. Carvalho says the armed forces would "smash" it as they did the extreme right. If there should be any more smashing to be done it is likely that the brigadier will be doing it, Six months ago he was a major

A Master in His 93d Year

By George F. Will

WASHINGTON-British school boys relished his short stories during the Boer War and today, nearly 75 years and more than 75 books later, he is recognized as one of the century's masters of English prose. Indeed Punch magazine once said that criticizing him would be like taking a spade to a souffle. Tuesday at his Long Island home P.G. Wodehouse, who has just published a new novel and is working on his next, celebrated his 93d

In an age when craftsmanship seems to be a depleted cultural resource, he has worked with words the way a silversmith works with his metal, and has brought pleasure to scores of millions. His most familiar characters are Bertram Wooster, a well-born, wellintentioned nitwit who goes through life in the protective custody of his erudite gentleman's gentleman, Jeeves, whose imper-turbable grace is conveyed in Wodehouse's description of him as "a procession of one." Since 1916, when the estimable Jeeves appeared, Wooster has been tumbling into and Jeeves has been pulling him out of hilarious imbroglios at Blandings Castle, the Drones Club, and Brinkley Court, Market Snodesbury. The purity of Wodehouse fun is never spoiled by the rude intrusion of serious ideas, and this purity offends some somber moderns. The bleak utilitarianism of the modern age leads to the disparagement of Wodehouse's works as "escapist." The strange thing is that anyone would be so fund of the cares and conditions of the modern world as to deplore literature that helps people escape to the Blandings Castles of their minds.

Wodehouse, creator of an innocently idyllic England, has been in a sort of self-imposed exile from England for four decades. because of an innocent mistake in a time when innocents were casualties. In 1940 he probably forgot there was a war on. In any case, the Germans cantured him at his villa in France, Released, he passed through Berlin, where a CBS radio correspondent (America was not yet in the war) asked him to broadcast to his American readers. He foolishly made a few utterly non-political broadcasts, and the Germans made propaganda use of the fact that a distinguished British writer was broadcasting from Berlin during Britain's darkest hour. He is so gloriously out of place in this century that he had a childlike incomprehension of the century's principal product, total war. That is not an excuse, but it is a fact. And it caused him to blemish his relations with his country.

In any case, Malcolm Mug-geridge, in his recent autobiography, reports that Wodehouse contributed, in an appropriately inadvertent way, to the war effort: "The Germans, in their literal way, took his works as a guide to English manners, and used them when briefing their agents for a mission across the Channel

"Thus, it happened that an agent they dropped into Fen country was wearing spats—an imaccustomed article of attire which led to his speedy apprehenaton."

losophy is contained in the passage where Wooster wonders why the titled Spode, who likes polities, does not run for Parliament. Wooster's Aunt Dahlia explains: "He can't, you poor chump. He's a lord.' Don't they allow Wodehouse's full political phi-lords in?' No, they don't.' I see, I said, rather impressed by this proof that the House of Commons drew the line somewhere." Wodehouse's philosophy of life is apparent (to the tutored eye) in the passage where Wooster, as usual, is trying to solve someone else's romantic problems and is making a hash of things. While dressing for dinner, and failing, as usual, to the his the properly. Wooster tries to convince the unflappable Jeeves that a shattering orisis is at hand.

Jeeves, refusing to be distracted from the important things, says: "We can but wait and see. sir. The tie, if I might suggest it, sir, a shade more tightly knotted. One sims at the perfect butterfly effect. If you will permit me-" Wooster, exasperated: "What do

Charles de Gaulle airport. Paris'newest attraction. Enjoy it.

As of November 1st most Air France Paris flights land at Charles de Gaulle. So much the better for you. Because it'd be worth visiting even if it weren't an airport.

But its striking architecture wasn't designed for looks alone. It encompasses a great many innovations for your comfort and convenience.

Spacious boarding and arrival areas arranged like satellites around the main terminal; moving carpets to whisk you effortlessly from place to place; shorter waiting time between check-in and boarding.

Charles de Gaulle is not only close to Paris. but you arrive at the Terminal Porte Maillot near the major business and tourist areas of the right bank. And right across the street from the new Méridien. our four-star hotel with 1023 de luxe rooms.

And since it's Air France's new home base, we didn't spare any effort on our installation. Three of the seven satellites are exclusively for Air France passengers. Thus you avoid crowds and confusion. You have the most direct access through customs to taxis and buses. Plus the fastest most convenient transit facilities. With all our personnel trained to handle any kind of travel problem, from writing a ticket to reserving a hotel room.

that the issue can be made

He said funds raised by the EEC next year should not exceed $3 billion. This should be used solely to fill oil-caused interna-tional payments gaps and should not be used for other purposes, such as financing budget deficis, be added.

Loans to EEC states using the proceeds of the bond issue should be tied to strict conditions designed to restore balance-ofpayments equilibrium in the debtor nations, Mr. Apel said.

Insisting that any EEC bond issue have a duration of at least five years, Mr. Apel commented, "We are interested in long-term loans, not minuteman loans." Oil-producing nations that are expected to buy the bond issue have largely avoided long-term commitments by placing major portions of their newly increased earnings in short-term bank

Mr. Apel said that in deliberating whether to give its support to an EEC loan, the government saw the need to avoid crises in member countries that could set back European integration or lead to import restrictions that would hadly damage West German exports. On the other hand, the government wanted to limit risks involved for West German taxpayers in accepting co-guar-autorship of the loan with the other member nations.

Therefore, he said, the government chose to approve the loan but only on the strict conditions that he outlined.

He estimated the oil-caused payments deficits of EEC member countries this year will reach $15 billion and commented that an EEC bond issue can only plug a small part of this gap. Today's decision does not mean the ministerial meeting next week can take final decisions on floating the loan, he said. It merely eant the Brussels commission could begin consultations with the European Parliament on the

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES :

Alfa Romeo, Union Study Cutbacks Alfa Romeo and the metalworkers' union have begun talks to decide if and how the Italian state-owned auto concern can cut production in the face of falling sales. Nino Gullotti, Min-ister for State Shareholdings and the man directly responsible for Alfa Romeo policy, says production would have to be cut 20 to 22 per cent from about 125,000 vehicles produced in 1973. Industry sources say this will involve closing some Alfa units for up to 40 days during the next five months. Flat, which produces 15 million autos a year—more than 10 times the number of cars that Alfa Romeo makes— has put 71,000 workers on a three-day week to reduce output 200,00 units by Jan. 31. Mr. Gullotti notes that Alfa Romeo had been hurt more by the general slowdown in the auto industry than other concerns because it produces larger models and has little in the way of truck or bus production to fall back on. Almost all of Alfa Romeo's 46,000 workers are involved in the auto divisions, but less than half the Fiat group's 200,000 employees are.

Carter Hawley, Fraser Revise Terms Carter Hawley Hale Stores of Los Angeles has revised the terms for the purchase of a large block of shares of the House of Fraser from Scottish & Universal Investment of Glasgow, Under the new terms, Carter will buy immediately 21.26 million shares of Fraser common stock. representing 17.5 per cent of the total outstanding, for approximately $60 million in cash, or $2.83 a share. The original agreement, reached last March, called for Carter to buy 243 million shares, or 20 per cent, of Fraser stock at $3.32 a share on or before Dec. 31. The new agreement also replaces a subsequent accord in July under which Carter had an option to purchase an additional 3.8 million shares, or 3.1 per cent, at $1.40 a share. As a result of the revised agreement and open market purchases of Fraser stock, Carter will own a total of 24.69 million shares, or 20.5 per cent, for a total investment of $66 million, Scottish & Universal, a holding company in publishing, financial services, spirits, textiles and other products, will retain 6.6 million shares, or 5.6 per cent, of Fraser stock. Carter operates 91 department stores and specialty shops in the United States and Canada. Fraser owns Harrod's of London, 135 other stores throughout Britain and Illum's of Copenhagen.

Toyobo of Japan to Cut Work Force Toyobo, a large Japanese textile concern with interests in both natural and synthetic fibers, hopes to cut its work force through voluntary retirement by about 10 per cent and to reduce its dividend because of recession conditions in the industry. The company says it reached agreement with its 21,000-member labor union to trim its workforce by 2,000 employees. Workers retiring under the plan will receive one month's pay plus 16 per cent higher retirement compensation than would normally be the case.
Toyobo originally had sought to cut its workforce by about 3,300 employees. Toyobo also plans to cut the salaries of about 30 executives by 10 per cent beginning in November—the third large firm in two days to announce such reductions. Toyobo's difficulties stem from pro-duction cuts ranging up to 50 per cent for various product lines

U.S. Auto Sales Off 15%

New U.S. domestic auto sales continued at an inauspicious pace in early October, falling to 216,110 units—a decline of 15 per cent between Oct. 1-10 from the year-ago period. Analysts say the results are in line with expectations. The early October drop followed the 22-percent decline experienced in September and it seemed to fortify the belief among industry experts that the sales of recently introduced 1975model cars, which carry record price increases, will not show any dramatic upsurge soon. One analyst says new-car sales continue to suffer from a "complete lack of consumer confidence" about the economy Presently, industry sources estimate fourth-quarter production will be about 2.2 million cars, down 6 per cent from the yearago level. For the period, Chrysler showed the only year-to-year gain, up 1 per cent.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 (AP-DJ).—Saudi Arabia's withdrawal of its gold reserves from the United States totaled 2,5 million ounces, valued at more than $100 million at the official price, between July 8 and Sept. 9, it was learned today.

More Gold

The new figures, confirming a systematic pulling out of Saudi Arabian gold from storage at the New York Federal Reserve Bank, follow a Commerce Department report yesterday that shipments of Saudi Arabian gold in July and August totaled 2.06 million

U.S. officials said they still do not know why Saudi Arabia de-cided to start moving its gold reserves, stored for years at the New York Fed, out of the coun-

The shipments, U.S. officials said, do not represent new Saudi Arabian gold purchases or offi-cial transactions with the U.S.

These officials said today that Saudi Arabia withdrew the first 500,000 ounces of its gold from the Fed on July 8. There were four subsequent withdrawals, of 500,000 ounces each, on July 15, Aug. 19, Aug. 26 and Sept. 9, they

Because of last year's sharp increase in world oil prices, Saudi Arabia's total monetary reserves have increased substantially. At mid-year, according to International Monetary Fund figures, they totaled more than $7 billion. Saudi Arabia has shown no disposition to increase the "gold component" of its monetary reserves, which remained steady during the first half of this year at $129 million, based on the official gold price of $42.22 an

Aramco, which produces almost all of Saudi Arabia's 8.8 million barrels of oil a day, is owned 60 per cent by the Saudi govern-ment and 40 per cent by four U.S. companies—Exxon, Mobil Oil, Texaco and Standard Oil of Cali-fornia. The four U.S. companies confirmed that they had been advised of the new price schedule. The new prices cover a boost in the Saudi government's oil royalty to 14.5 per cent from 12.5 per cent, retroactive to July 1, and an additional 3.5 per cent increase in the government's take, including a further rise in the royalty rate to 16.67 per cent, retroactive to the beginning of this month. Based on what they pay for their 40 per cent in equity crude and for 95 per cent of the government's 60 per cent participation crude, the four companies will see their weighted-average cost for benchmark Arabian light crude go up about 35 cents a barrel in the fourth quarter, to $9.80 a barrel, as a result of the Saudi move. The third and fourth-quarter price boosts are in line with those adopted by the other 11 members of OPEC at their Quito and Vienna meetings. However, fol-lowing each of those meetings, Saudi Arabia had dissociated itself from the pricing moves, claiming an interest in holding down world oil prices.

Swiss Drop Penalty

BERN, Oct. 16 (Reuters).-The Swisz Finance Ministry said today the government will allow non-residents to receive interest on bank deposits held in Switzerland as of Oct. 21. This reverses a policy begun in July 1972 imposing an annual 8 per cent "penalty" charge on foreign deposits aimed at keeping foreign currency from coming into Switzerland.

Lanvin Shirts

or the "perfect fit"

A MAN may try to pass off his first custommade shirt as if it were nothing. That's his business not ours. To the people at Lanvin, that first custom shirt means a lot. The smallest detail counts: the pleats in back, the shoulder seams. Everything perfect.

Because the first shirt is a model for all the rest to come. Here at Lanvin we'd call the first one a "prototype" if the word "prototype" didn't make us think of synthetics, computers and data processing.

Thirteen Hundred Unique Fabrics

There is something about the quality and hand-craftmanship of the past: Lanvin is that something.

Ask Mr. Van Hangel, who tom shirt, Some of the wois in charge of the custom department. He gets an old fashioned gleam in his eye when he tells you about your choice of 1,300 fabrics or when he starts talking about "his" weavers in Lombardy or Northern France. Come in, talk to him, have your measurements taken.

Go up to the third floor where it happens. The Scanstresses There, in the workshop-

probably the last of its kind in the Faubourg St-Honoré - are seamstresses - probably the last of their kind in the world too. Working from a paper pattern based on your individual measurements, the Lanvin seamstresses make your first cusmen have been at Lanvin for more than 20 years. They know more than the art of shirtmaking. They know how a collar (detachable or not) should lie, howthe front of a shirt should fall, where the shoulder seams ought to hit, how much leeway you need for your cuff buttons,...

It's more than a trade it's invention, creation, finesse. Finally, Your Shirt

You take home your first shirt, wear it, have it washed (at home please! and by hand!). Then bring it back. Sorry. But the perfect shirt requires patience.

We take your worn-andlaundered shirt, measure some more, talk to you and come up with a finished pattern for your perfect shirt. Sometimes that takes a month. But once the preliminaries are over so are your shirt problems. From then on, you have only to choose your fabric. Your measurements go on file at Lanvin, along with those of some 7,000 other men who trust us. Men from all over the world. Royalty. Beautiful People. Heads of State. Mr. Van Hangel could tell such interesting stories—but he won't. Something to do with discretion.

Lanvin's responsibility to you doesn't stop with perfect fit. Our choice of material takes into account every nuance of lifestyle, every taste, every color. For example the elegant discretion of that pale blue material -not just any pale blue, but the Lanvin pale blue - is in itself a sign that you have your shirts made for you. Then there are our patterns, unavailable anywhere else. Why, after all, come to Lanvin?

Perhaps because you have certain idea of yourself. Perhaps just because you want to. But please don't come on the spur of the moment. Perfection takes time.

At the hub of the Common Market, in Morgan Guaranty's new Brussels building, an experienced team of international banker is headed by Vice President and General Manager Charles d'Ursel, at left, with Deputy General Manager Robert G. Wilmer

Morgan Guaranty introduces its uncommon new building in the Common Market capital

When Morgan Guaranty Trust Company's Brussels office opened 55 years ago—the first branch of any American bank in that city—the bank's ties with Belgium already were strong. For many years we had been active in international finance and had served several European governments. Since then Morgan has helped finance a significant portion of Belgian world trade and become banker to many corporations in the Benelux countries, and beyond.

Now Morgan Guaranty has a new home in Brussels—a striking new building at 35 avenue des Arts. The Belgian architect André Jacqmain and his associates have created a bold design suited both to the tradition of a stately street and to the dynamism of the capital of the Common Market.

Our officers and staff in Brussels and Antwerp, numbering nearly 400, bring to Belgian and international companies the complete range of corporate financial services that Morgan Guaranty provides to leading business enterprises throughout the world. Our skilled bankers can design finance for short, medium, or long term. They help corporate financial officers analyse international cash flows, invest surplus funds in money-market instruments, and manage foreign currency exposure. They can advise you and your company on financial problems of all kinds.

Our Brussels office is linked by instant communication with Morgan Guaranty offices in other key financial centres. In the foreign exchange trading room in our new building, market information from around the world will be continuously updated via the most advanced information display system. This is only one of the many ways in which our new home will enable us to serve the banking needs of business better than ever.

If you are interested in how our services can help your company, we invite you to visit our new building in Brussels, or any of the Morgan Guaranty offices in the cities listed below. Whatever your corporate banking needs, consider Morgan Guaranty. You'll be in good company. We're already helping 96 of the world's 100 largest corporations—and a great many smaller ones, too.

Morgan Guaranty Trust Company, 23 Wall Street, New York, N.Y. 10015 • Overseas Banking Offices: Paris, London, Brussels, Antwerp, Frankfurt, Düsseldorf, Munich, Zurich, Milan and Rome (Banca Morgan Vonwiller), Tokyo, Nassau • Representative Offices: Madrid, Beirut, Sydney, Hong Kong, São Paulo, Caracas • International Banking Subsidiaries: San Francisco, Houston

Hydro-Québec Dated at Montréal Province of Québec, Canada This 8th day of October, 1974

GEORGES LAFOND, Treasurer.

One good banking idea in Canada led us to another in Paris

Over 100 years ago, we saw Canada's need for financial backing to develop her rich, natural resources. That was our first good idea It led to other good ideas in Paris and in many other places in the world: good ideas about trade, investment and international financing.

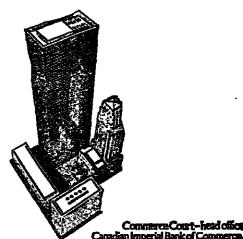

Today, we have over 1600 branches from the Atlantic to the Pacific and offices in Australia, Europe, Japan, London, the USA and throughout the Caribbean. We are one of the world's largest banks with over $16 billion in assets.

We have seen a lot of small businesses become big businesses and a lot of good ideas become realities.

If you have a good idea, come and talk to us. We know what good ideas can lead to. That's how we became one of the world's largest banks.

THE SIEGE OF KRISHNAPUR By J. G. Farrell. Harcourt Brace Jovanovich. 344 pp.

Reviewed by Christopher Lehmann-Haupt

NEAR the end of "The Slege of Krishnapur," J. G. Farrell's fictional treatment of the Sepoy Rebellion (in which a revolt of the sepoy troops in British India between 1858 and 1859 led to the transfer of the administration of India from the East India Company to the crown: a particularly provocative scene unfolds. The sepoy mutineers are swarming over the ramparts of Krishnapur. In desperation, Hopkins the Collector, the town's chief administrator, loads a cannon with a canister stuffed full of every leftoyer be has been able to lay his hands on-stones, penknives, pieces of lightning-conductor, chains, nails the embossed silver cutlery from the dining room . . some ivory falso teeth . . . fragments of marble chipped from The Spirit of Science Conquers Ignorance and Prejudice' "-and fires it into the midst of the swarming sepays.

Peering over the parapet to see what damage his salvo has done. the Collector beholds the follow-ing scene: "A sepoy here was trying to remove a silver fork from one of his lungs, another had received a piece of lightning-conductor in his kidneys. A sepoy with a green turban had had his spine shattered by The Spirit of Science; others had been struck down by teaspoons, by fish-knives, by marbles; an unfortunate subadar had been plucked from this world by the silver sugar-tongs embedded in his brain. A heart-rending wail now rose from those who had not been killed outright."

It is not a pretty scene, I'll admit; it seems on the face of it to be too grisly to be taken as comedy, too outlandish to be taken seriously. Yet I couldn't resist quoting it because it illustrates, both literally and symbolically, what makes Mr. Farrell's novel so effective.

On the one hand, it does seem serious in its context. The European inhabitants of Krishnapur have been under siege for weeks and weeks when the senovs attack, and they can't hold out too much longer. They are running low on food, gunpowder, able-bodied men. Starvation, disease, insanity have decimated their ranks. The accumulation of garbage, body wastes and corpses has made conditions intolerable for the survivors. More important, we have come to care what happens to them. With such admirably stiff upper lips now, they carried on that any possible means of defense seems worthwhile to us readers. And if it takes chips of a sculpture called "The Spirit of Science Conquers Ignorance and Prejudice" to buy time until fresh troops arrive, why then there's nothing amusing about it.

On the other hand, the something amusing about I picture of all that Victoria a-brac mowing down the —just as there is som amusing about nearly every in Mr. Farrell's novel. With the North-South cards shown in the diagram, they attempted grand-slam contracts, once in spades and once in diamonds. Three aces and two voids in the combined hands would sometimes be enough, but in this case the missing ace was not nullified by one of the voids. Both grand slams were played from the South position, and would have stood a fair chance of success if East had held the club ses. On any lead but a club there would have been 13 tricks. As it was, however, West produced the club ace and it was

Most of the auctions were lengthy, but one pair, as shown, took an abrupt and surprising route. South showed a powerful band with an artificial bid of two clubs, and North made a natural positive response of three clubs.

As this indicated a long club suit containing some strength, South decided that the ace and queen of clubs were the vital cards. He was willing to play a grand slam if and only if North's chib suit was headed by the A-Q of clubs. To locate these cards he made an electrifying jump to five no-trump.

This was the grand-slam force. accepting clubs as the trump suit and directing North to bid seven clubs if he held two of the top three trump honors. Lacking such a holding, he was required to sign off in six clubs, and this he dutifully did, expecting the auction to end. However, South now changed the picture by bidding six diamonds, introducing

Foreman sparred for two rounds against Henry Clark, but the session was no more an indihold in the ring than a five-mile training run. Clark landed one punch to the head, a left jab that ran out of steam against the champion's headguard. The rest of his punches went toward Foreman's body, which looks leaner and harder now than it did in training for the original Sept. 25

Moscow Emphasizing Scale Of Sports in Its Olympic Bid

By Hedrick Smith

MOSCOW, Oct. 16 (NYT) .- national teams recognized by the International Olympic Committee Aleksandr Gresko, a former national decathlon competitor who has become secretary of the Soviet Union's preparatory committee for the 1980 Olympic Games, reached over to a shelf in his office and pulled down a book the size of a Manhattan telephone University Games here.

"This is our international sports plan for just one quarter," he explained, fanning the pages. "We have four of these volumes for one year. They show all of our meets and games with foreign teams and our participation in international competitions."

He said that, in 1973, more than 15,000 Soviet athletes traveled abroad to take part in sports competitions and more than 17,000 athletes from 64 foreign countries came to compete with Soviet sportsmen here.

"We had sports connections with 83 countries in 50 different kinds of sport," Gresko went on. "We have 82 sports specialists-trainers, sports administrators coaching, training sports clubs and teaching our state system of sports organization in 21 foreign countries. Six hockey coaches in Austria, for example."

The vast scale of the Soviet international sports establishment, which has caused some Western analysts to regard the statesubsidized Soviet system as an arm of Soviet diplomacy and propaganda, is one point that the Soviet State Committee on Physical Culture and Sports emphasizes in pushing Moscow's candi-dacy for the Olympic Games,

The International Olympic Committee meets in Vienna Oct. 22-23 to decide between Moscow and Los Angeles as a site for the 1980 summer games. Lately, the Soviet press has literally been flooded with articles asserting Moscow's "moral right" to host the games for the first time for a Communist country.

Sergei Pavlov, head of the sports committee, has been quoted in interviews promising construction of a sleek new Olympic village with five new 22-story hotels to accommodate 12,000 athletes and with 8,000 places in the restaurants. Soviet officials have talked of new stadiums or swimming pools, courts, tracks and improvements in old sports facilities that will cost, they say, about $250 million, including construction of the Olympic village, In addition, the state tourist agency has estimated that more than 40 new hotels will have to be built to provide 100,000 to 150,000 more beds for sports fans and international dignitaries coming to see the Olympics. The Soviet Olympic Committee has pledged free access for any and promised that no political demonstrations will be allowed to take place at the Olympic sports grounds, a controversial issue after the booing and jeering of Israeli athletes during the 1973

Sadler. "But I do like to get back into the ring. That's the best part of training. It makes the day go quicker." Up to today—with the exception of daily roadwork and trips in the back of a near empty bus to N'sele for workouts—the champion has spent most of his time in his hotel suite.

The routine is broken when Foreman takes his dog for a walk or does some sitting in the hotel

Foreman doesn't talk about being bored, but Terry Lee, one of his sparring partners, found the time dragging so much that he volunteered to referee in a Zaire basketball league. "It was that or starting to throw ping pong balls against the wall," he said.

Sadler maintains that a little boredom never hurt any boxer. "Makes 'em irritable, makes 'em want to fight. You don't want too many distractions. George could have flown up to Paris for a couple of days and gotten himself unbored. But he decided against it, even though the Zaire government offered us the tickets. It was the right thing."

NFL Colts' Woes Aid Sunday Traffic

By Tom Boswell

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 (WP).

There was no football traffic jam in front of Baltimore's outdoor insane asylum (Memorial Stadium) on Sunday for the first time since Johnny Unites was in his rookie season, 1956. The white-gloved police of Bal-

One Taxpayer's Plan

WASHINGTON—The two major political problems in this country this week are that Nelson Rockefeller seems to have too much money and Richard Nixon doesn't seem to have enough.

"That's not cheap," I warned Selwyn "Nixon likes a lot of perks, such as servants, chauffeurs, secretaries, ghost-writers, not to mention a press secretary and a large office staff."

"Rocky can handle it." Selwyn assured me, "At least, he can afford it more than we can."

"But," I said, "there could be a conflict of interest, Suppose Nixon ran for public office again? If he had accepted a gift of Rockefeller."

"If you read Rockefeller's statements, he has never given anybody money except as a gesture of appreciation and friendship. Not once has he taken advantage of the gifts."

The Reverse of Typecasting: Donald Sutherland as Fascist

PARMA, Italy (IHT).—Donald Sutherland stands there in the farmyard causing queasiness all around and deeply emberrassed about it. One feels as if one should call an ambulance rather than open a conversation. Sutherland wears a held wig and drying blood and open sores that come out of a makeup pot but look all too real, and he has just done a scene in which he lies prone in a pigsty while grunting Parma porkers root at him, sniff, sit on his stomach and nibble at his trousers (the last two actions are not in the script and are pure ham).

Sutherland is a polite man, and approachable, but as he talks he keeps back-"I smell," he says, "of authentic pig shit." He does.

He is playing Attila, the Italian Fascist foreman in Bernardo Bertolucci's film "1900." unusual casting for a man who in life has fought for civil rights and peace in Vietnam and who on the screen, whether in black comedy like "M*A*S*H" or remantic thrillers like "Klute" or "Don't Look Now," projects a rare quality of decency and good sense.

"If you take someone who looks like fascist and have him play a fascist, people will say, Oh there's a fascist. Putting someone like Donald Sutherland in the part makes people reflect," Bertolucci says.
"At the same time, there's no doubt he's

"It's easy to hate Attila, I've come to like him," Sutherland says. Characteristi-cally, he adds what most actors might choose to cover: that he was not the first choice, the part having been offered to such obvious heavies as Peter Boyle ("Joe") and Oliver Reed. He is basing much of his characterization on Wilhelm Reich's "Psychology of Fascism."

"The failure of most political movies these days," he says, "is that they have such a loyalty, such a legitimate loyalty, to their points of view that they fail to communicate. The people who would like the film like it, the others are turned off.
"We're not all fascists, nor do we all have the capacity to be fascists, but a lot of us don't have the capacity not to be fascists," Sutherland says. He has been reflecting on the relation of the family image and fascism—most particularly Goebbels's argument that Jews had turned on the motherland and so, as ungrateful children, should be destroyed-and also on the common cruelty he sees each day:
"Twe seen it with these pigs. People the pigs become hysterical." Sutherland is a tall, knobby-faced unactorish man who is nuts about acting. If he is a vegetarian it is not for ideology but to take off 40 pounds he gained for his last picture; if he delivered his last baby himself, an act that attracted wide attention it was simply because he expected to be filming in Borneo when the baby was born and was worried about medical care there. He is careful and dogged.

His last role, for which he gained the 40 pounds, was Homer Simpson, the soft and melancholy hotel bookkeeper in John Schlesinger's eagerly awaited film version of "The Day of the Locust." Sutherland got the part by proposing himself for it and reproposing himself after he'd been turned down. He worked out the look and voice he thought Homer should have and was with Schlesinger and cinemaphotographer Conrad Ball when they studied films about or from the 30s, from Bertolucci's "The Conformist" to a splashy color test Selznick made for "Gone With the

Born in Canada, Donald Sutherland became a disk jockey at 14. His voice was already deep and one of his shows was called "Candlelight and Silver." After the University of Toronto, he studied acting in London. The particular kind of work I did was on an emotional base, with no techniques," he says. "I was under the impression that, I would get the technique there, which was incorrect. I had a voice I was pleased with, they wanted to raise it an octave. As result, my voice doesn't have the flexibility I would like it to have." worked in English repertory for seven years, appeared on the West End stage, did TV and made several horror

In "Billion Dollar Brain" he was the voice of a computer. By 1968 he was being talked of as someone to watch, but he never heard the talk. "I wish I had," he says. By the time he made "M"A"S"H" he had been in

Sutherland may do another film with "M*A*S*H" director Robert Altman and Elliott Gould, a pirate film for which Altman has allegedly signed up the Turkish Navy. A plan to film an early Nabokov story about chess with director Jan Troell has fallen through, so may a hope to do Conrad's "Victory" with Nicholas Roeg. Sutherland would like to direct a film on Canadian land reformer Louis Riel and also one in China on another Canadian

Norman Bethune, who took part in the Long March. Sutherland met Bertolucci for the first time when Bertolucci, spying him in the Pont Royal Hotel in Paris, imitated a scene with a revolving door out of Sutherland's then-latest picture, "Alex in Wonder-

"Working with people like Schlesinger and Bertolucci is wonderful," he says, "because the essence of being an actor is allowing yourself to be subjective, being relieved of the responsibility and need to be objective. Working with people like that can really be joyful. With Altman, Recently, though, he had a not untypical experience when with Elliott Gould he acted in Irvin Kerschner's "S*P*Y*S," which had first been called "Wet Stuff," which is CLA slang for blood.

"The studio said stuff is a diminutive and wet stuff sounds dirty," says Suther-land. "So they changed the title to "S*P*Y*S,' misspelled and with three asterisks." The film was, however no "M+A+S+H."

Kerschner, Gould and Sutherland wrote a letter to the studio pointing out its obligation, not to mislead audiences. No reply. From the first day, when Gould and Sutherland saw that the picture wasn't to be as described, it was rough.
"It's like drowning." Sutherland says.

of the World Chess Federation, said Wednesday that if world champion Bobby Fischer refuses to defend his title by April 1, 1975, the winner of the current Soviet challenge match between Anatoly Esrpov and Viktor Korchnol will become the new champion. Karpov holds a 2-0 lead with 10 games drawn in his 25-game marathon with Korchnol.

In Los Angeles, Fischer's blographer Brad Darrach insists that Fischer will play. "Karpov is the main reason," Darrach told Dan Berger of the Associated Press. "He (Fischer) can't afford not to (play) because his ego is at stake." Darrach quoted Fischer as saying, "I'll destroy him," when talking about Karpov.

Max Euwe of Holland, president truck driver, the beauty shop operator," Eagleton said. Even so, the senator does not think that Wallace will make the .76 ticket.

> The Melbourne Herald said Wednesday that Prince Charles. heir to the British throne, is likely to be appointed the next governor-general of Australia. The paper did not identify its sources but said that the prince probably will serve a term of one to two years after the retirement in about five years of Sir John Kerr. 60, who became governorgeneral this year. Australian officials in Canberra discounted the paper's report, pointing out that it is the policy of Prime Minister Gough Whitiam's Labor government to accept only Australians as governors-general. In London, a Buckingham Palace spokesman termed the report "pure speculation." Charles is currently in Australia, where he dedicated a $20.9-million telescope northwest of Sydney Wednesday.

> William Heath, 86 - year - old father of British opposition Con-servative leader Edward Heath. is all for the permissive society.
> "One of the greatest advantages of being as old as me," he said. "is that you can do things that would bring younger men a punch on the nose. You can go around kissing girls at parties and even their husbands don't mind. They think you're too old to enjoy it. But they're wrong. I love flirting. And my only complaint about the permissive society is that it came 40 years too late."

"Prince" Leonard, the self-styled ruler of the Hutt River Province, 380 miles north of Perth in Australia wants to establish diplomatic relations with the similar "free state" set up m Britain last weekend by farmen Victor Craven Hodgson. But, says Prince Leonard, he will only recognize the new regime in Britain when he is satisfied about Hodgson's moral and judicial entitlement. The Hutt River ruler is designing his own flag, says he will pay no more taxes but intends to impose an entry tax for visiting politicians, public servants and councillors. He says he is in contact with several countries about recognition of his state within
